OVERVIEW

Michael Hernandez has devoted a decade of his professional career to civil litigation, with an unwavering dedication to the field of personal injury. His insightful understanding of the complexities inherent in civil litigation has propelled his successful track record of vigorously advocating for his clients.

Beyond his notable skill as a civil litigator, Attorney Hernandez exhibits an equally remarkable commitment to criminal defense, particularly for the Hispanic and Latino community in Massachusetts. His cultural insight and language proficiency empower him to effectively represent this demographic with a unique blend of cultural competence and legal acuity.

Prior to his current position with Cetrulo LLP, Attorney Hernandez received his Bachelor's Degree in Criminal Justice and Sociology from Rutgers University. Following this, he advanced his legal education at Suffolk University Law School, earning his Juris Doctorate.

His career trajectory has seen him making substantial contributions to several personal injury firms in the Greater Boston area. Among these roles, he most notably served as the lead attorney for all civil litigation matters at his previous firm, demonstrating his leadership and strategic litigation skills.

Attorney Hernandez is a valued member of the Massachusetts Bar Association and the Boston Bar Association and has been the recipient of numerous accolades from various legal directories, further affirming his standing as a preeminent attorney in the domain of civil litigation and personal injury.
